OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it, ye sons of the [illegible]
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 9, 1862

Reflections on the Conduct of the War

The greatest successes of the Union armies have been nearly neutralized by corresponding losses, most of which might have been easily avoided. For every leader that has shown some trait of decided excellence, we have had another whose imbecility has been a sufficient offset to it. To Gen. Grant's pugnacity, we have the contrast of Gen. Buell's caution; to the reckless desperation of Gen. Kearney may be opposed the pusillanimity of Col. Miles; and to the machine-like correctness of Gen. McClellan, Gen. Pope furnishes the contrast. All of these men are endowed with certain remarkable traits, but their varied talents have never been combined for the purpose of making a perfect whole. The greatest generals are of little account without competent subordinates. Napoleon would never have won at Jena if Davoust had not commanded at Auerstadt—and Lee would have been shorn of the best part of his strength, in the late advance from Richmond, if he had not had the assistance of Stonewall Jackson. But few men have had caution and dash combined. We need not look for such a military phenomenon in any of the generals now in service. But we can reasonably suppose that two men may be found, who, by uniting the qualities of Fabius and Marcellus can gain decisive victories. The first was aptly called the shield, the other "the sword" of the Roman armies. The Confederates have embodied this idea in the persons of Lee and Jackson. One of these men is as correct as McClellan; Jackson has the energy and valor of Marcellus. The question may be asked, why was not Gen. McClellan seconded by a Marcellus? It may be answered that, the jealousies of rival generals were the proximate causes of its not being done. Each had to have a corps d'armee of just so many men. Towards the last days of Gen. McClellan's command he appeared to have conceived the idea of putting Burnside forward as his active coadjutor, as is shown by largely increasing the command of that general; but whatever his designs were they were cut short by his removal.

The victories of Antietam, Iuka and Corinth, were nearly neutralized by the surrender of Mumfordsville, the blunder at Perrysville and the capitulation at Harper's Ferry. It is asked, Why were incompetent commanders kept in active service? The censure bestowed on the Government for the faults of Miles, Mason and Buell, are in part deserved. Why should Miles have a second trial of his qualities, after his conduct at Bull's Run? or Buell after his extreme caution had been demonstrated? or McClellan after the disasters before Richmond? It may be answered that Generals Butler and Pierce blundered at Great Bethel, yet the first has done good service at New Orleans and Pierce died a hero's death in one of the battles in Maryland. Gen. McClellan won at Antietam. Gen. Schenck caused his men to be literally massacred at Vienna, and has since proven himself a staunch soldier. Gen. Pope was, at first, entirely successful in his military career and closed it by losing the confidence of his subordinates and soldiers.

But the question occurs, Why do the Confederates manage better in the selection of leaders? Simply because they were not taken by surprise. The talents of their men were all duly weighed before hand. They have contemplated this rebellion for years. Their men were known and marked. Every contingency was fore-casted. They selected the District of Eastern Virginia as one of the strongest defensive positions in the national territory. It gave, also, great facilities for attack on Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. As they proved the competency or inability of an officer, he was advanced or shelved. Success, with them, was the only road to promotion. No apology for non success could palliate the acts of "an apology for a General." Above all, they went into the war to stay in and win, and determined that nothing short of absolute, general defeat should make them lower their pretensions.

Upon our side has been vascillation, political scheming and spoils hunting. Men of small calibre have been maintained in high military positions by force of newspaper puffing and the interference of civilians in matters pertaining to the conduct of the war. Fortunately the Government is awakening to the necessity of concerted action and the development of the entire military resources of the loyal States. If the incentive of promotion for brave acts and skilful conduct is added, the work of suppressing the rebellion will be short and sharp.

While the conduct of the military leaders and the Government may justly be made the subject of criticism, the character of the Union troops has been placed above all censure. The history of modern warfare may be searched from beginning to end without finding parallels to the heroic exploits of our soldiers when properly lead. The peculiarity best described as "game" has been illustrated in so many instances by them as to silence forever the censorious tongues and pens of European critics. Nor is this quality denied to our misguided Southern brethren. They have manifested a quality worthy of a better cause.

WALLA WALLA NEWS.—The weather at Walla Walla was quite cold and ice had begun to form on the edge of the [illegible]

Martin Moore, the Councilman from Shoshone county, returned from Boise on the 6th inst., and [illegible] the following news from that quarter to the Statesman:

The mining region, as far as prospected, extends east and west some thirty miles and north and south fifteen miles. The diggings are on the north branches of the Boise, and are drained by three creeks known as Grimes creek, Moore's creek and Placer creek. Nearly all the small gulches and banks along these creeks pay from $8 to $20 per day. The richest bank diggings have been found on Moore's creek, and the richest gulch on Placer. One claim on the former creek prospects to a depth of fifteen feet from [illegible] cents to $1 50 to the pan, and there claims there prospect nearly as well. On Placer creek, Murphy & Co. have taken out of their claim as high as $100 per day.

Mr. Lyman Shaffer has discovered a quartz lode on Placer creek, which prospects as high as $1 to the pan [illegible]

Mr. Moore states that the diggings are both rich and extensive, though he would advise no one to attempt to make the trip there this fall, as they would necessarily have a cold long journey and perhaps be unable to get into the mines this winter; even on arriving there would most likely be unable to do anything at prospecting or mining on account of cold and snow. No difficulty is anticipated there this fall with Indians, they having left that country for their wintering places.

There was no snow in the mines when Mr. M. left, though the weather was becoming very cold.

PAY DAY.—The long looked for pay day at Fort Walla Walla has come at last. Major [illegible] commenced paying off the volunteers on [illegible] and Uncle Sam's men, with their pockets full of greenbacks, [illegible] feeling as independent [illegible] In all about sixty five thousand dollars has been paid to the soldiers during the week, leaving, we are told, a balance of sixty five thousand dollars to pay. The money to meet this is expected by the first of January at farthest. Since the distribution of these funds we notice quite a visible increase of greenbacks in our market.—Washington Statesman 6th inst.

VIGILANCE COMMITTEE.—A Vigilance Committee has been formed recently at Florence, which it is said has made a very perceptible change in the department of persons with road agent proclivities. Quite a number of suspicious characters had taken their leave for parts unknown.—Washington Statesman 6th inst.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.—Company "B," Oregon Cavalry, is ordered to Fort Dalles from Walla Walla. Capt. Spencer's Company of W. T. Infantry is ordered from the Dalles to Fort Walla Walla.

CHANGE OF POLICY.—Mons. Thouvenel, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, has retired and is succeeded by Mon. Drouyn de l'Huys. Mons. Thouvenel was the advocate of Italian unity, and sympathized with the national cause in the United States. His successor is a retrogressive politician, and will probably favor the permanent establishment of the French power in Mexico with a view towards future interference in our affairs. The change forbodes an attempt to induce the co-operation of England and Russia in recognizing the Southern Confederacy, which those powers have so recently refused to do.

WANT TO BE SUPPRESSED.—It has been charged that certain persons engaged in publishing secession papers on this coast have purposely made themselves obnoxious in order to be suppressed, so that advance subscriptions may be retained. This, at first, looked very improbable, but from the uniform conduct of this class of papers sufficient proof has accumulated to show the justice of the charge. However, if the sympathizers can stand the drain on their finances we can witness it with great fortitude.

COERCION.—The Rev. Mr. Miller, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was forcibly prevented from preaching at a school house on the Coast Fork on Thanksgiving Day. The persons who interfered are said, by the Eugene Review, to have been "burly, belligerent, weak minded, strong passioned, illiterate and intolerant persons." A genteel flagellation would undoubtedly tend to improve the characters described.

The Eugene Review thinks the funds which are raised for the Sanitary Commission are liable to be embezzled. The same paper also thinks Abraham Lincoln is a cowardly old idiot, and says that if his hide was only half as black as his heart he might travel from Maine to Mexico without needing a body guard of any number of men. Here is evidently another person spoiling for martyrdom.

A FRIEND TO THE GOVERNMENT.—We are informed by an old resident of Astoria, that the Custom House at that place now used by the U. S. Government was fitted up at an expense of seven hundred dollars in July, 1860, by Capt. Geo. Flavel, and the use of the same tendered gratuitously to Uncle Sam for one year. This is the first instance we ever heard of when Uncle Sam did not have to pay rent.—Press, Nov. 27.

We are informed by one of the oldest residents of Astoria that the above statement is a good way from the truth. That Capt. Flavel fitted up a useless, unfinished, worse than worthless building—to him—in Oct., 1861, instead of July, 1860—at an expense of $300, counting the old building, instead of $700—and gave it free to the United States for one year, up to Nov. 1, 1862, for a Customs Office, with the agreement that if the Government had it longer he should receive rent for it. And also, as everybody in Astoria, understood at the time, with the object of preventing the Customs Office from being located on Shively's, or Welch's, or Smith Point, or at any other point or place not contiguous to his property, or advantageous to his interests, and to get his property into a condition to pay rent. It is not good policy to extol or magnify the virtues of one man at the expense of the many—as several parties offered Uncle Sam free of rent for a Customs Office at Astoria, at the time the offer of Capt. Flavel was accepted—because of the convenience of the locality—and not to save $100 a year to the United States. [illegible]

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

LATER FROM THE EAST.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The frigate Vanderbilt has returned from search for the pirate Alabama—having steamed four thousand miles, cruising from Great Banks southward to Bermuda.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Gen. Stahl attacked a superior force of the enemy's cavalry at Snicker's Gap on Saturday, and drove them within four miles of Winchester. Fifty rebels were killed, and forty taken prisoners. The Federal loss was fifteen. A large amount of commissary stores and ordnance, 100 head of horses and cattle, three stand of colors, with other rebel property was captured.

The Navy Department has information that the pirate Alabama is expected to visit the Azores early in November to receive supplies of ammunition and men from Bahama.

Gen. Blunt, with [illegible] Federals, attacked and routed [illegible] rebels under Marmaduke at Cane Hill, Ark., Nov. 28th, killing 60 and driving the balance some 12 miles.

FALMOUTH, Nov. 30.—Five Federal gunboats are reported to have advanced up the Rappahannock opposite King George Court House.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—A prize fight took place yesterday on Angel Island between a member of Fire Co. No. 7 and a member of Alert Hose Co. Forty two rounds were fought. The member of No. 7 was brought over nearly dead—his injuries are thought to be serious. The friends of the principals refuse to divulge any particulars. It is rumored that the difficulty originated a week ago in a lager beer cellar, and that a woman is at the bottom of it.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO SANITARY FUND.—Before acknowledged, $17 948 20.

From Oregon City (additional), $58 10; Martha Greer, King's Valley, $[illegible]; Rev. D. L. Spaulding, Mary's river, $[illegible]; A Friend, (W.) Portland, 20. Total—$18 [illegible] 30.

By request I have prepared (omitting fractions) the following statement of contributions received by me, showing what has been subscribed in each county in Oregon and in Washington Territory. Nothing has been sent to me from Coos, Curry or Tillamook, and $40 forwarded by Jesse Applegate, Esq., from Umpqua, is included in the amount received from Douglas. The statement will, I hope, suggest to the people of some of the counties reasons for more earnest patriotic efforts.

The Daily Oregonian.

CITY.

The MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

PAN-TECHNA-THECA.—The exhibition of the panoramic views bearing the name which heads this item—it is too bad to have to write it again—at the Willamette Theatre, last night, was attended by a large number of persons. Much instruction may be derived from witnessing it, and we have no hesitation in pronouncing it entirely worthy of public patronage. The water views, particularly, are highly meritorious, taken altogether, and some are of surpassing beauty and truthfulness to nature.

FAVOR.—Stratman & Co., of the Periodical and News Depot at San Francisco, have our thanks for a bounteous supply of periodicals and newspapers. This house is authorized to receive subscriptions for Godey's Lady's Book and the Atlantic Monthly, at publisher's rates.

DAY SCHOOL.—We call attention to Mr. Stinson's advertisement of a day school to be kept in the basement of the Baptist church. Mr. Stinson is a graduate of the New Jersey College, at Trenton, where he took the degree of Bachelor of Arts. We are assured of his competency to give satisfaction.

APPOINTMENT.—D. W. Lichtenthaler has been appointed Justice of the Peace for South Portland precinct, in the place of S. E. Barr, resigned.

MONTHLY PUBLICATIONS. — The Atlantic Monthly for November, is before us. In addition to the usual serial fictitious writing, it contains three political articles. The first is a monograph, entitled "Conversational Opinions of the Leaders of Secession," giving some views of the three representative men: Jefferson Davis, Robert Toombs and R. M. T. Hunter, as expressed in familiar conversation. The other two relate to the President's Emancipation Proclamation, which is vigorously defended. There are also articles on the emancipation of the serfs in Russia and the Atlantic Telegraph.

GODEY'S Lady's Book contains the usual monthly medium of interesting information for the ladies.

CHANGE OF ROUTE.—The People's Line of Ocean Steamers, from San Francisco to New York, have drawn off of the Nicaragua route, and hereafter they will connect by way of Panama and Aspinwall. The attention of the reader is called to the advertisement in regard to the change, in to-day's paper.

REPORTED KILLED.—We are informed that a Mr. Short, of Vancouver, was lately killed in a personal difficulty at Griffin's Gulch, Powder river mines.

Mobilians threaten to "lay their loved city in ashes" before surrendering it to a Federal fleet. Well, an ash-hole is as good as a secesh port any day.

Van Amburgh's war elephant, Hannibal, lately made his breakfast, at Tiffin, Ohio, on a candy peddler's stock; consisting of six thousand cakes of ginger-bread, seventy pounds of assorted candies and forty pounds of "French kisses." He tried to take the peddler in for dessert, but fortunately he escaped. The price of this little feast, was $80.

LEWISTON NEWS.—The work on Fort Lapwai is progressing rapidly. Quarters for one company are finished. Maj. Francis has been at Lapwai, paying off the troops at that post. Suspicious characters are banished from the vicinity of Lewiston, on the first symptoms of dishonest dealing. Indeed, the same is the rule in all parts of the Nez Perces country.

White's Fever and Ague Drops.—For the cure of AGUE, PANAMA FEVER, NEURALGIA and GENERAL DEBILITY.

This medicine has been used in private practice for many years with great success. Indeed, in no instance has it failed to effect a speedy cure, in Ague especially, one bottle having been found sufficient in most cases and in none are more than two bottles required.

A great number of testimonials could be given to verify these statements, but the proprietor prefers relying upon the merits of the medicine alone. A cure is guaranteed in nine cases out of ten.

Prepared only by ROBERT WHITE, Chemist and Druggist, Main street, Placerville, and Broadway, Upper Placerville. For sale by all respectable Druggists throughout the State.

Wholesale Agents, EDWARD HALL & CO., Wholesale Druggists, 538 Washington street, San Francisco, to whom all orders should be addressed. oct18:4w3m

Board of Delegates.—Regular Meeting of Board of Delegates of the Portland Fire Department on Monday, December 8th, 1862, at 7 P. M.
T. B. TREVETT,
Sec'y P. F. D.
Dec. 6th, 1862.

White's Patent Lever Trusses.—These instruments are recommended to the public as the best ever yet invented. The principle is new and different from any other. The Pad works over a Knuckle, giving it a circular INWARD and UPWARD motion, thus being able to support the rupture with half the pressure required by other Trusses. The pain consequent upon heavy pressure is thereby avoided.

These instruments will not rust, and are the lightest, most durable and most cleanly of all others. They can be washed at pleasure. Many persons have been cured by them of ruptures of several years standing.

LADD, WEBSTER & CO'S FAMILY SEWING MACHINES

ARE UNEQUALLED BY ANY FOR

BEAUTY AND SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION

—AND—

Efficiency in Working.

A GOOD SEWING MACHINE SHOULD BE WELL MADE, simple in its construction, and easily kept in order: should make a tight lock-stitch, alike on both sides of the material, and should sew any and all materials that can be sewed.

It should be able to use cotton, thread, or silk directly from the spool, and to sew from coarse to fine, and from thick to thin, with rapidity, and without changing the tension. It should also be able to make the tension greater or less, on both the under and upper threads, and with uniformity; and should have a straight needle, curved ones being liable to break.

The needle should have perpendicular motion—this is absolutely necessary for heavy work.

It should be able to bind with a binder, hem with a hemmer; should stitch, fell, run and gather, and should be always ready to work.

It should be capable of using the same size thread on both sides of the work, and of using different colors of thread or silk, above or below, to correspond with any two colors of cloth to be united.

It should be able to make a long or short stitch, and to fasten off the seam and commence sewing tightly at the first stitch, and to run easily, and make but little noise.

It should have a wheel-feed; no others are in constant contact with the work.

It should not be liable to get out of order; neither should it require a screw driver or wrench to set the needle.

It should not be liable to oil the operator's dress.

It should not form a ridge on the under side, nor ravel.

Scientific Balloon Ascension.

An int[illegible] ascension was [illegible] in England by Mr Glaisher [illegible] ascension was [illegible] Mr Coxwell [illegible] Mr G [illegible] the highest point [illegible] ever visited by man [illegible] an interesting [illegible] history of science [illegible] he was carried to an extent [illegible] fatal to one of the [illegible] interest [illegible] public.

THE FREEZING POINT was reached at a height of two miles. At the elevation of three miles the thermometer stood at 18° above zero and at four miles 8° below and no dew was observed on the hygrometer when cooled down to minus 30°. Up to this point the observer Mr Glaisher had experienced no difficulty in breathing while Mr Coxwell in consequence of the necessary exertion he had to make had breathed with difficulty for some time.

DIMNESS OF SIGHT began to be experienced at an elevation of five and a half miles which Mr G thus narrates:

At a height of about 5 miles I read the dry bulb is minus 5° in endeavoring to read the wet bulb I could not see the column of mercury. I rubbed my eyes then took a lens and also failed. I then tried to read the other instruments and found that I could not do so, nor could I see the hands of the watch. I asked Mr Coxwell to help me, and he said he must go into the ring, and he would when he came down. I endeavored to reach some brandy which was lying on the table at about the distance of a foot from my hand and found myself unable to do so.

TOTAL LOSS OF POWER was indicated at about five and three quarter miles elevation, as will be noticed from the following continuation of the above paragraph.

My sight became more dim. I looked at the barometer and saw it between 10 and 11 inches, and tried to record it but I was unable to write. I then saw it at 10 inches, still decreasing fast, and just noted it in my book; its true reading, therefore, was at this time about 9¾ inches implying a height of about 5¾ miles, as a change of an inch in the reading of the barometer at this elevation takes place on a change of height of about 2,500 feet. I felt I was losing all power, and endeavored to rouse myself by struggling and shaking. I attempted to speak, and found that I had lost the power. I attempted to look at the barometer again; my head fell on one side. I struggled and got right, and it fell on the other, and finally fell backward.

My arm, which had been resting on the table, fell down by my side. I saw Mr Coxwell dimly in the ring. It became more misty, and I sank unconsciously as in sleep. I then heard Mr Coxwell say, "What is the temperature? Take an observation, now try." I shortly afterward opened my eyes, saw the instruments and Mr Coxwell very dimly, and soon saw clearly and said to Mr Coxwell, "I have been insensible," and he replied, "You have, and I nearly."

I recovered quickly, and Mr Coxwell said, "I have lost the use of my hands, give me some brandy to bathe them." His hands were nearly black. I saw the temperature was still below zero, and the barometer reading 11 inches, but increasing quickly. I resumed my observations. I found that the water in the vessel supplying wet bulb thermometer, which I had by frequent disturbances kept from freezing, was one solid mass of ice. Mr Coxwell then told me that while in the ring he felt it piercingly cold, that hoar frost was all around the neck of the balloon, and on attempting to leave the ring he found his hands frozen, and he got down how he could; that he found me motionless, with a quiet and placid expression on the countenance. He spoke to me without eliciting a reply, and found I was insensible.

He then said he felt insensibility was coming over himself; that he became anxious to open the valve; that his hands failed him, and that he seized the line between his teeth, and pulled the valve open until the balloon took a turn downward.

Mr Glaisher is of opinion that the balloon, during their partial insensibility, and at the time Mr Coxwell opened the valve with his teeth, must have stood at an altitude of 6, if not 6½ miles from the earth.

Six pigeons were taken up. One was thrown out at the height of three miles; it extended its wings and dropped as a piece of paper. A second, at four miles, flew vigorously round and round, apparently taking a great dip each time. A third was thrown out between four and five miles and it fell downward. A fourth was thrown out at four miles, when we were descending; it flew in a circle, and shortly afterward alighted on the top of the balloon. The two remaining pigeons were brought down to the ground. One was found to be dead and the other (a carrier) had attached to its neck a note. It would not however leave, and when jerked off the finger returned to the hand. After a quarter of an hour it began to peck a piece of riband encircling its neck and I then jerked it off my finger, and it flew round two or three times with vigor, and finally towards Wolverhampton. Not one however had returned there when I left on the afternoon of the 6th.

Mr G adds the following by way of inference:

It would seem from this ascent that five miles from the earth is very near the limit of human existence. It is possible, as the effect of each high ascent upon myself has been different, that on other occasions I might be able to go higher and it is possible that some persons may be able to exist with less air and bear a greater degree of cold; but still I think that prudence would say to all, whenever the barometer reading falls as low as 11 inches, open the valve at once; the increased information to be obtained is not commensurate with the incurred risk.

The London Times, commenting upon the perilous enterprise observes:

The aerial voyage just performed by Mr Coxwell and Mr Glaisher deserves to be ranked with the greatest feats of our experimentalizers, discoverers and travelers. It is true the gentlemen have not brought down a very comfortable or inspiring report of the upper world into which they have penetrated. Science and poetry are unhappily rather at variance upon the subject of the air and the sky. Poetry points upward to the sky with glowing rapture as the scene of brightness and glory, and a residence there figures as the reward of heroism and greatness. Everything is happy and pleasant that is connected with the sky. But science penetrates with its material eye into those vast upper plains and simply reports a great difficulty of breathing there; that the blood stagnates; the limbs become benumbed; the senses evaporate and nature faints and becomes insensible. Even birds will not fly in that very sky which is their poetical home. The distinction is that poetry looks up to the sky from below and science examines and feels it on a level.—The sky is the emblem of poetry, the [illegible] of science. Both respects of it are equally true, but the point of view from which they are taken is quite different. But, though our recent explorers of the sky do not add to its brilliancy as a picture, they have furnished one more striking and impressive scene to the history of science. They have shown what enthusiasm science can inspire and what courage it can give. If the man, as the poet says, had need of triple steel about his breast who first launched a boat into the sea, certainly those had no less need of it who first floated into the air six miles above the surface of the earth.

Muscular Strength

The muscular strength of the human body is wonderful. A Turkish porter will trot at a rapid pace and carry a weight of six hundred pounds. Milo, a celebrated athlete of Crotona, in Italy, accustomed himself to carry the greatest burdens, and by degrees became a monster in strength. It is said that he carried on his shoulders an ox four years old and weighing upwards of one thousand pounds and afterward killed him with one blow of his fist. He was crowned seven times at the Pythian games, and six at the Olympic. He presented himself the seventh time but no one had the courage to enter the lists against him. He was one of the disciples of Pythagoras, and to his uncommon strength that preceptor and his pupils owed their lives. The pillar which supported the roof of the building suddenly gave away, but Milo supported the roof of the house, and gave the philosopher time to escape. In his old age he attempted to pull up a tree by the roots and break it.—He partially effected it, but his strength being gradually exhausted, the tree where cleft reunited, and left his hand pinched in the body of it. He was then alone, and unable to disengage himself, died in that position. Haller mentions that he saw a man whose finger had caught in a chain at the bottom of the mine by keeping it forcibly bent, supported by that means the whole weight of his body, one hundred and fifty pounds, until he was drawn up to the surface, a distance of six hundred feet. Augustus II, King of Poland, could roll up a silver plate like a sheet of paper, and twist the strongest horse shoe asunder. A lion is said to have left the impression of his teeth upon a piece of solid iron. The most prodigious power of muscle is exhibited in the fish. The whale moves with a velocity through a dense medium, water, that would carry him around the world in less than a fortnight. A swordfish has been known to strike his weapon through the thick plank of a ship; a specimen of such a plank with the sword of a fish sticking in it, may be seen in the British Museum.

As Mrs Partington came in after her long absence it seemed as if sunshine had entered with her though there was anxiety upon her brow and a bundle in her hand. It was for the "salutary committee," she said. "According to the last century," said she, "how many are there to be grafted in Boston?" looking at us with great earnestness as she spoke. It was the one question that we couldn't answer, not having the census at hand. Finding herself foiled in this she continued, "Well can you tell me if a man is exempted from being grafted who has bellicose veins?" We assured her that we thought not; that the more we had with bellicose veins the better; whereat she was silent. We complimented her on what she was doing for the soldiers. "Yes," said she, "everybody should do something for the cause, how ever circumscribed their means." She took a pinch of snuff as she spoke and looked down meekly at the bundle tied up in the old Constitution and Guerriere cotton handkerchief like [illegible] was outside taking care [illegible] was threatening to tear down the recruiting handbills on our [illegible]

At a war meeting at Chicago some one offered a cow to the first married volunteer. The first volunteer was a single man who stepped forward amid boisterous applause, some cheering the man and others cheering the cow. "Gentlemen," said he, "I belong to the class that can't be cowed."
